

Dear friends,

Just over a year ago, on October 7th, Hamas murdered over 1,200 men, women and children in the worst loss of Jewish life since the Holocaust. An additional 251 people were taken hostage.

At a rally for Israel in the immediate aftermath I said we must stand with our ally in its fight for freedom. Today, that is as important ever.

Over the past year we've witnessed, weekend after weekend, the grotesque spectacle of people taking to the streets of our cities to valorise Hamas, Hezbollah, and the Houthis. We've seen antisemitism skyrocket to record levels.

Jewish people in the United Kingdom have faced abuse and intimidation because other Jews, thousands of miles away, have been murdered. This fact must shame us. I will never be cowed from calling out the antisemitic alliance between the far-left and Islamists in this country.

In Government, I tabled anti Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions (BDS) legislation to stop local councils boycotting Israel. I successfully campaigned to proscribe Hamas and Hezbollah and I revoked visas for supporters of Hamas. I drove through plans for the Holocaust Memorial.

It was a record that saw me sanctioned by the Iranian regime — something I regard as an honour.

But I'm standing on more than just my record. I have a plan to defeat this awful Labour Government. A Government that in just their first hundred days demonstrated that they prioritise appeasing sectarian extremists over standing with our allies like Israel. To win, we need to rebuild trust by showing clarity of purpose with clear policies - not the promise of one down the line.

Under my leadership, our party will continue to stand with Israel and not give an inch to Hamas or their apologists here in the UK. Israel has a right to defend itself and we must reject Labour's suspension of arms export licences to Israel for use in Gaza. We must staunchly oppose UK involvement with UNRWA when time and again they are linked to Hamas.

I have always campaigned for the IRGC to be proscribed, and as your leader, I will hold Labour's feet to the fire so they make good on their promise.

I will always stand with you as friends and colleagues and look forward to continuing to work with and support CFI.

Kind regards,
Rt Hon Robert Jenrick MP
